Teen Talk – Problem Page

Problem: I share a room with my little brother. He is seven and he always plays with my things. When I study, he makes a lot of noise. We argue every day and my parents are tired of it. What can I do? – Kerem, 14

Answer: Dear Kerem, sharing a room is not easy. First, talk to your parents and make some room rules together. For example, each of you can have your own shelf, and nobody touches the other person's shelf. Second, find a quiet place for studying, like the kitchen table or the school library. Finally, spend some time with your brother. Little brothers often want attention from their big brothers!

a) What is Kerem's problem? Write two things. (5 p)

b) Write two solutions from the answer. (5 p)

c) "Little brothers often want attention from their big brothers." What does this sentence suggest about the little brother's behaviour? (5 p)
